PALÒCLEVES

This project presents the visual identity for Palócleves, an exhibition exploring the kitchen as a cultural and social system.

The identity is based on the idea of heritage as something active, unstable, and continuously reinterpreted.

Concept

The starting point of the identity is a Hungarian floral folk ornament.

However, instead of using it as decoration, I approached it as a structure that can be transformed.

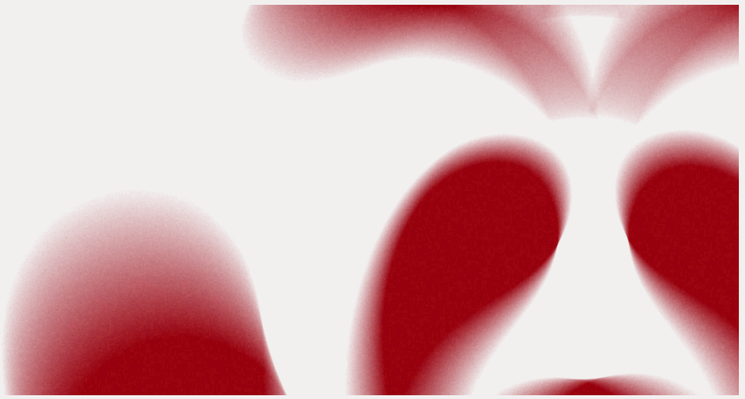

Visual approach

The motif is fragmented, scaled, and repeated across different applications.

By doing this, it loses its original ornamental function and becomes a flexible graphic element.

This reflects the idea of the exhibition: heritage is not something fixed, but something that changes through interpretation.

Colours

The identity uses a strict red and white palette.

Red references materiality, intensity, and the physicality of the kitchen: heat, food, and labor.

White acts as a neutral surface, creating contrast and space.

Together, they create a bold and reduced visual language.

Logo

The logo is purely typographic.
It works as a stable and controlled element within the system, contrasting with the more expressive motif.

This creates a tension between order and ornament.
